

How to play the More Beautiful World Game™

A. The Rules

1. Make eye contact with the other person.
2. Always begin with the other person's name.
3. No cross talk or comments (even positive ones) and always end with "thank you."
4. Players can pass their turn if they want more time to respond. They are nonetheless thanked as if they gave a full answer.
5. Stick to the script. The person posing the questions asks them the same way every time, like playing slow pitch baseball.

B. The Script

1. "[Name], what is one thing you can tell me about the more beautiful world your heart knows is possible?" (Partner answers)
2. "How is that important to you personally?" (Partner answers)
3. "How might that be important to the people around you?" (Partner answers)
4. "Thank you."

Directions: First, one person asks the three questions of the next person. The answerer becomes the next asker—going back and forth or around the circle many times. One game can last 20 minutes or spark a lifetime of creative thought. More is better. Playing the More Beautiful World Game™ is as simple as playing volleyball and, like playing volleyball, it can produce a shot of dopamine and an endorphin rush!

C. The Wrap Up

Suggested questions for wrapping up a game (The wrap up is an integral element in the game):

- What was a theme you noticed in the answers that were given?
- How was it for you to listen without interrupting?
- How was it for you to speak without anyone commenting?
- Who do you know nearby and far away that would like to know about the More Beautiful World Game™ ?

Some questions and answers

I'm having trouble with the first question. Can you help?

Hardly anyone is familiar with the first question because it asks us to think in ways we don't normally think, i.e., outside the matrix. After a few rounds, it gets easier and goes deeper. Plus, a little practice playing the game strengthens a person's imagination and mental flexibility in other areas of life.

(Important notice: the script says "What is one..." not "What is the one...")

Who can play?

Anyone can take the rules and script of the More Beautiful World Game™ and with nothing more than the paper you are holding start their own global network. The game is played with a circle of up to seven people in person or on a Zoom call or on a road trip. Real-person-to-real-person playing provides the optimal results. I encourage you to copy this brochure and send it to a friend or twenty. Translate the rules and script into another language. And join the MBW Team online.

Why build vision?

- Because we need to think newly about who we are and we need a fresh vision of what we are living for.
- Because if we don't ask new questions and create new visions, nothing fundamental changes and we end up living someone else's vision for us.

Why is the MBW Game™ important?

- Because more and more of us are waking up to who we truly are and discovering we have been living within a limiting system of thought—an invisible matrix of separation. This matrix tells us we have little influence over the forces that shape our lives, regardless of our efforts. Millennia in the developing, the matrix presents a future of scarcity and struggle in which individuals are powerless and will never fully realize who they are.
- Because playing this game can be a possibility-expanding experience. Its purpose is to ignite multiple networks of friends around the world who would welcome the opportunity to talk about possible future outcomes and to put into words a vision and a direction that arises from hearts and minds around the world addressing the same questions.

Why is the Game important now?

- Because the stakes are high. Now is the time to go directly to the root of a core problem of a humanity which has been living under a cloud of limitations in a matrix of separation, scarcity and struggle for a long time. Now is the time to give voice to our inherent alignment and to speak with intention and clarity.
- Because it is a tool for leveraging intention. The MBW Game™ gives people access to a multiplying factor they didn't know they had.

How can you create your own personal world-wide transformational movement?

With nothing more than this brochure, you are a free agent to start your own global movement among the people in your world and the people in their worlds. This is enough. If you want more, you will find it in the members' area (free).

The purpose of the More Beautiful World Game™ is to engage people around the world in conversations that build a compelling vision of the world their hearts know is possible. In order to create heart-centered, vision-building conversations, the Game has two levels of activity—a game within a game—one personal and one global.

The goal of the game on the personal level is to initiate conversations using three questions which connect the knowing of people's hearts with the words of their minds in order to build a vision of the future their hearts know is possible. The game begins inside a person's chest.

The goal of the game on the global level is to spread the three-question conversations to friends and acquaintances nearby and far away. Then those friends can spread the conversations to their friends and acquaintances nearby and far away who will spread the conversations to their friends.... This is how a person creates a personal world-wide transformational movement.

How to join the MBW Team

In order to spread the MBW Game™, we intend to make duplicating the game as simple as possible. In the free members' area you can download printable materials, report your stats, check out videos on other uses for the game and join a global conversation. You will receive training in leading games. This is how an individual becomes the source of their own personal global movement.

As with any game, we will have a scoreboard on the website showing the number of players, the cities and languages, and other pertinent statistics.

Subscribe and watch the conversation grow
But please don't wait for the website to be complete!

About the More Beautiful World Game™: the game is one of unlimited applications of the Segue Collective Intelligence Process™ (aka the Segue Game™). On our website, you will find more examples and training in how to use this synergy-creating multi-tool process.

Please remember, this project is an experiment in spreading an idea without relying totally on social media. I encourage face-to-face speaking and listening because high-quality personal interactions are a precious treasure.

I appreciate you participating in calling forth the world we know deep inside is possible.

Aloha,

Robert Bystrom
